What can I solve for you?

Combining my experience in litigation with my enjoyment of solving complex problems, I help clients effectively and efficiently navigate a wide range of matters that arise in the business, facilities and real estate areas.

What's it like to work with me?

School districts provide invaluable services and benefits for our communities, and I am honored to help them with their business, facilities, and real estate needs so that they can focus on their mission of providing quality education to the public. These areas often involve legal issues that are quite intricate, and I find it gratifying to use my skillset to find the course of action that provides our clients and the taxpayers with the most value for their money.

Overview

Focusing on business, real estate and facilities, Jonathan Velasquez helps develop strategies for matters ranging from architect and construction errors and omissions, to contractual disputes.

Jonathan contributes his extensive experience and enjoyment of analyzing and simplifying complex problems for his clients' benefit. Emphasizing writing and communication skills, Jonathan adeptly synthesizes information into easily digestible content. Whether resolving a dispute or facilitating a transaction, he emphasizes teamwork and bringing people together to find solutions that work well for all parties.

Prior to joining F3, Jonathan practiced general business and real estate litigation, representing all manner of business entities including LLCs, partnerships, and non-profits. In this capacity he gained valuable skills resolving prelitigation disputes as well as extensive experience in litigation through all stages, including appeals.

After School

I enjoy all manner of outdoor activities but I especially love hiking and running with my fiancé and dog. Family is also very important to me, so my ideal weekend always includes barbequing and spending time with my parents, siblings, aunts, and uncles. I have also been a guitarist for about 20 years and enjoy playing a wide variety of styles, including blues and classical.
